JUNE 1937

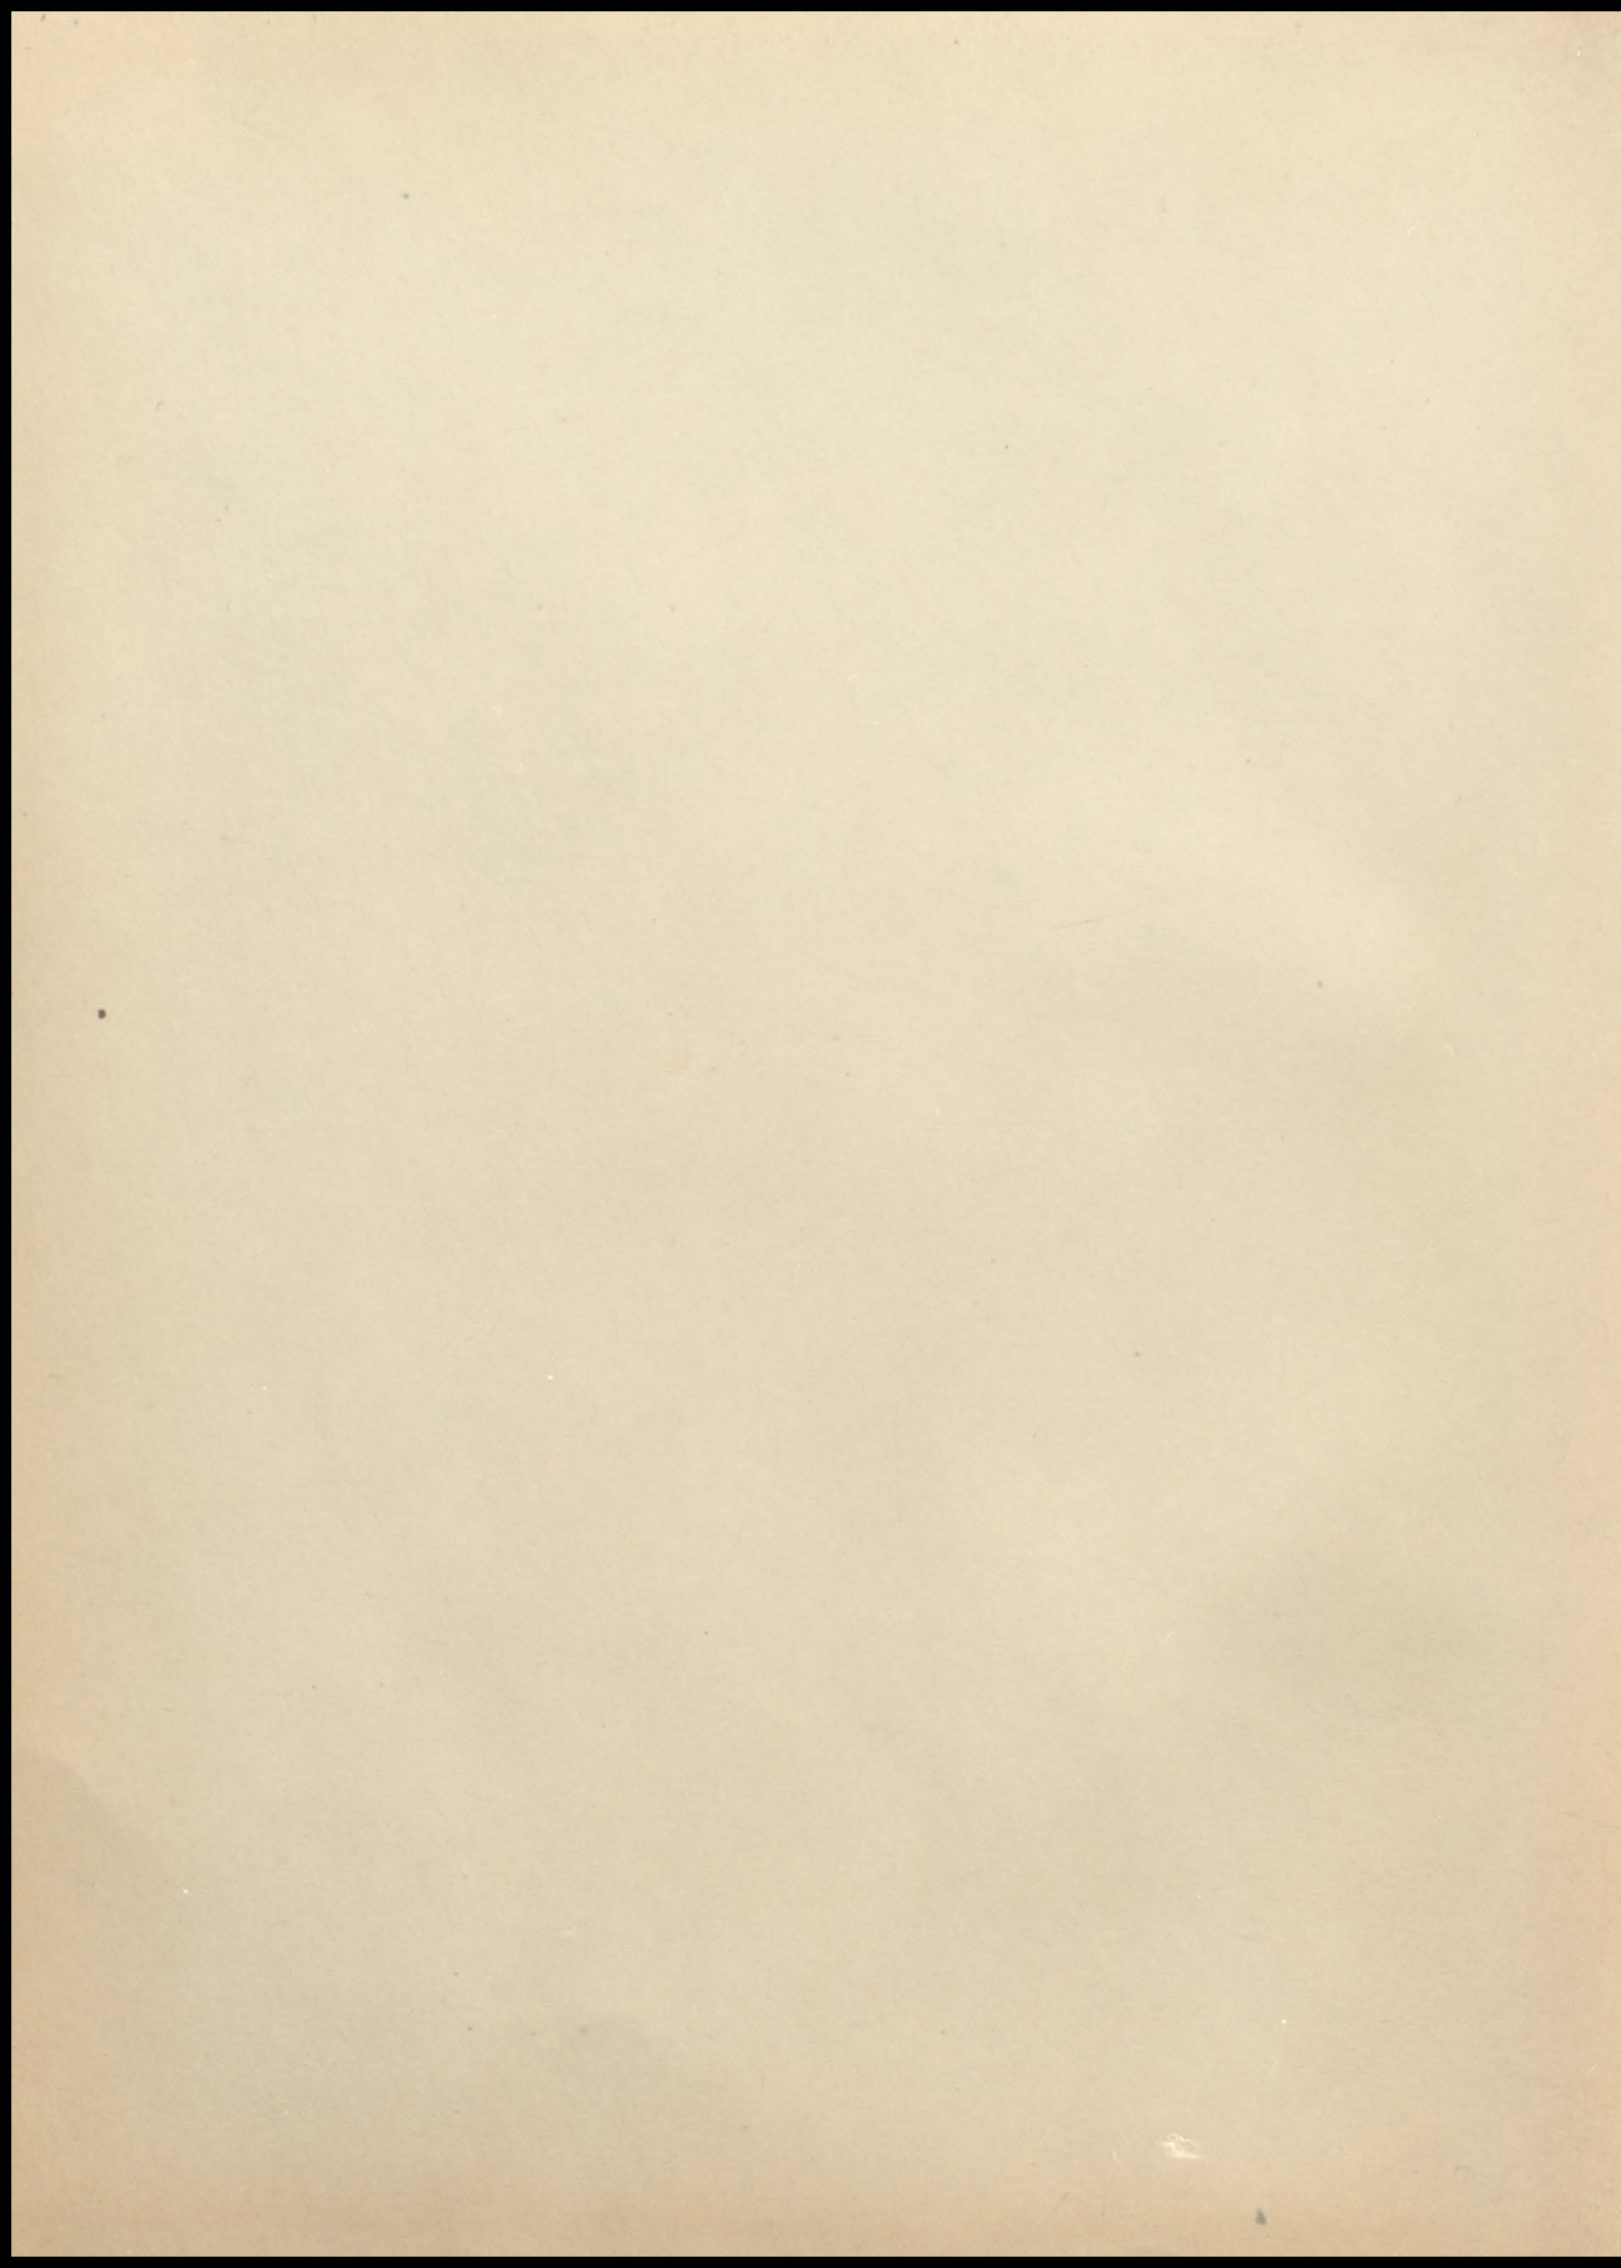

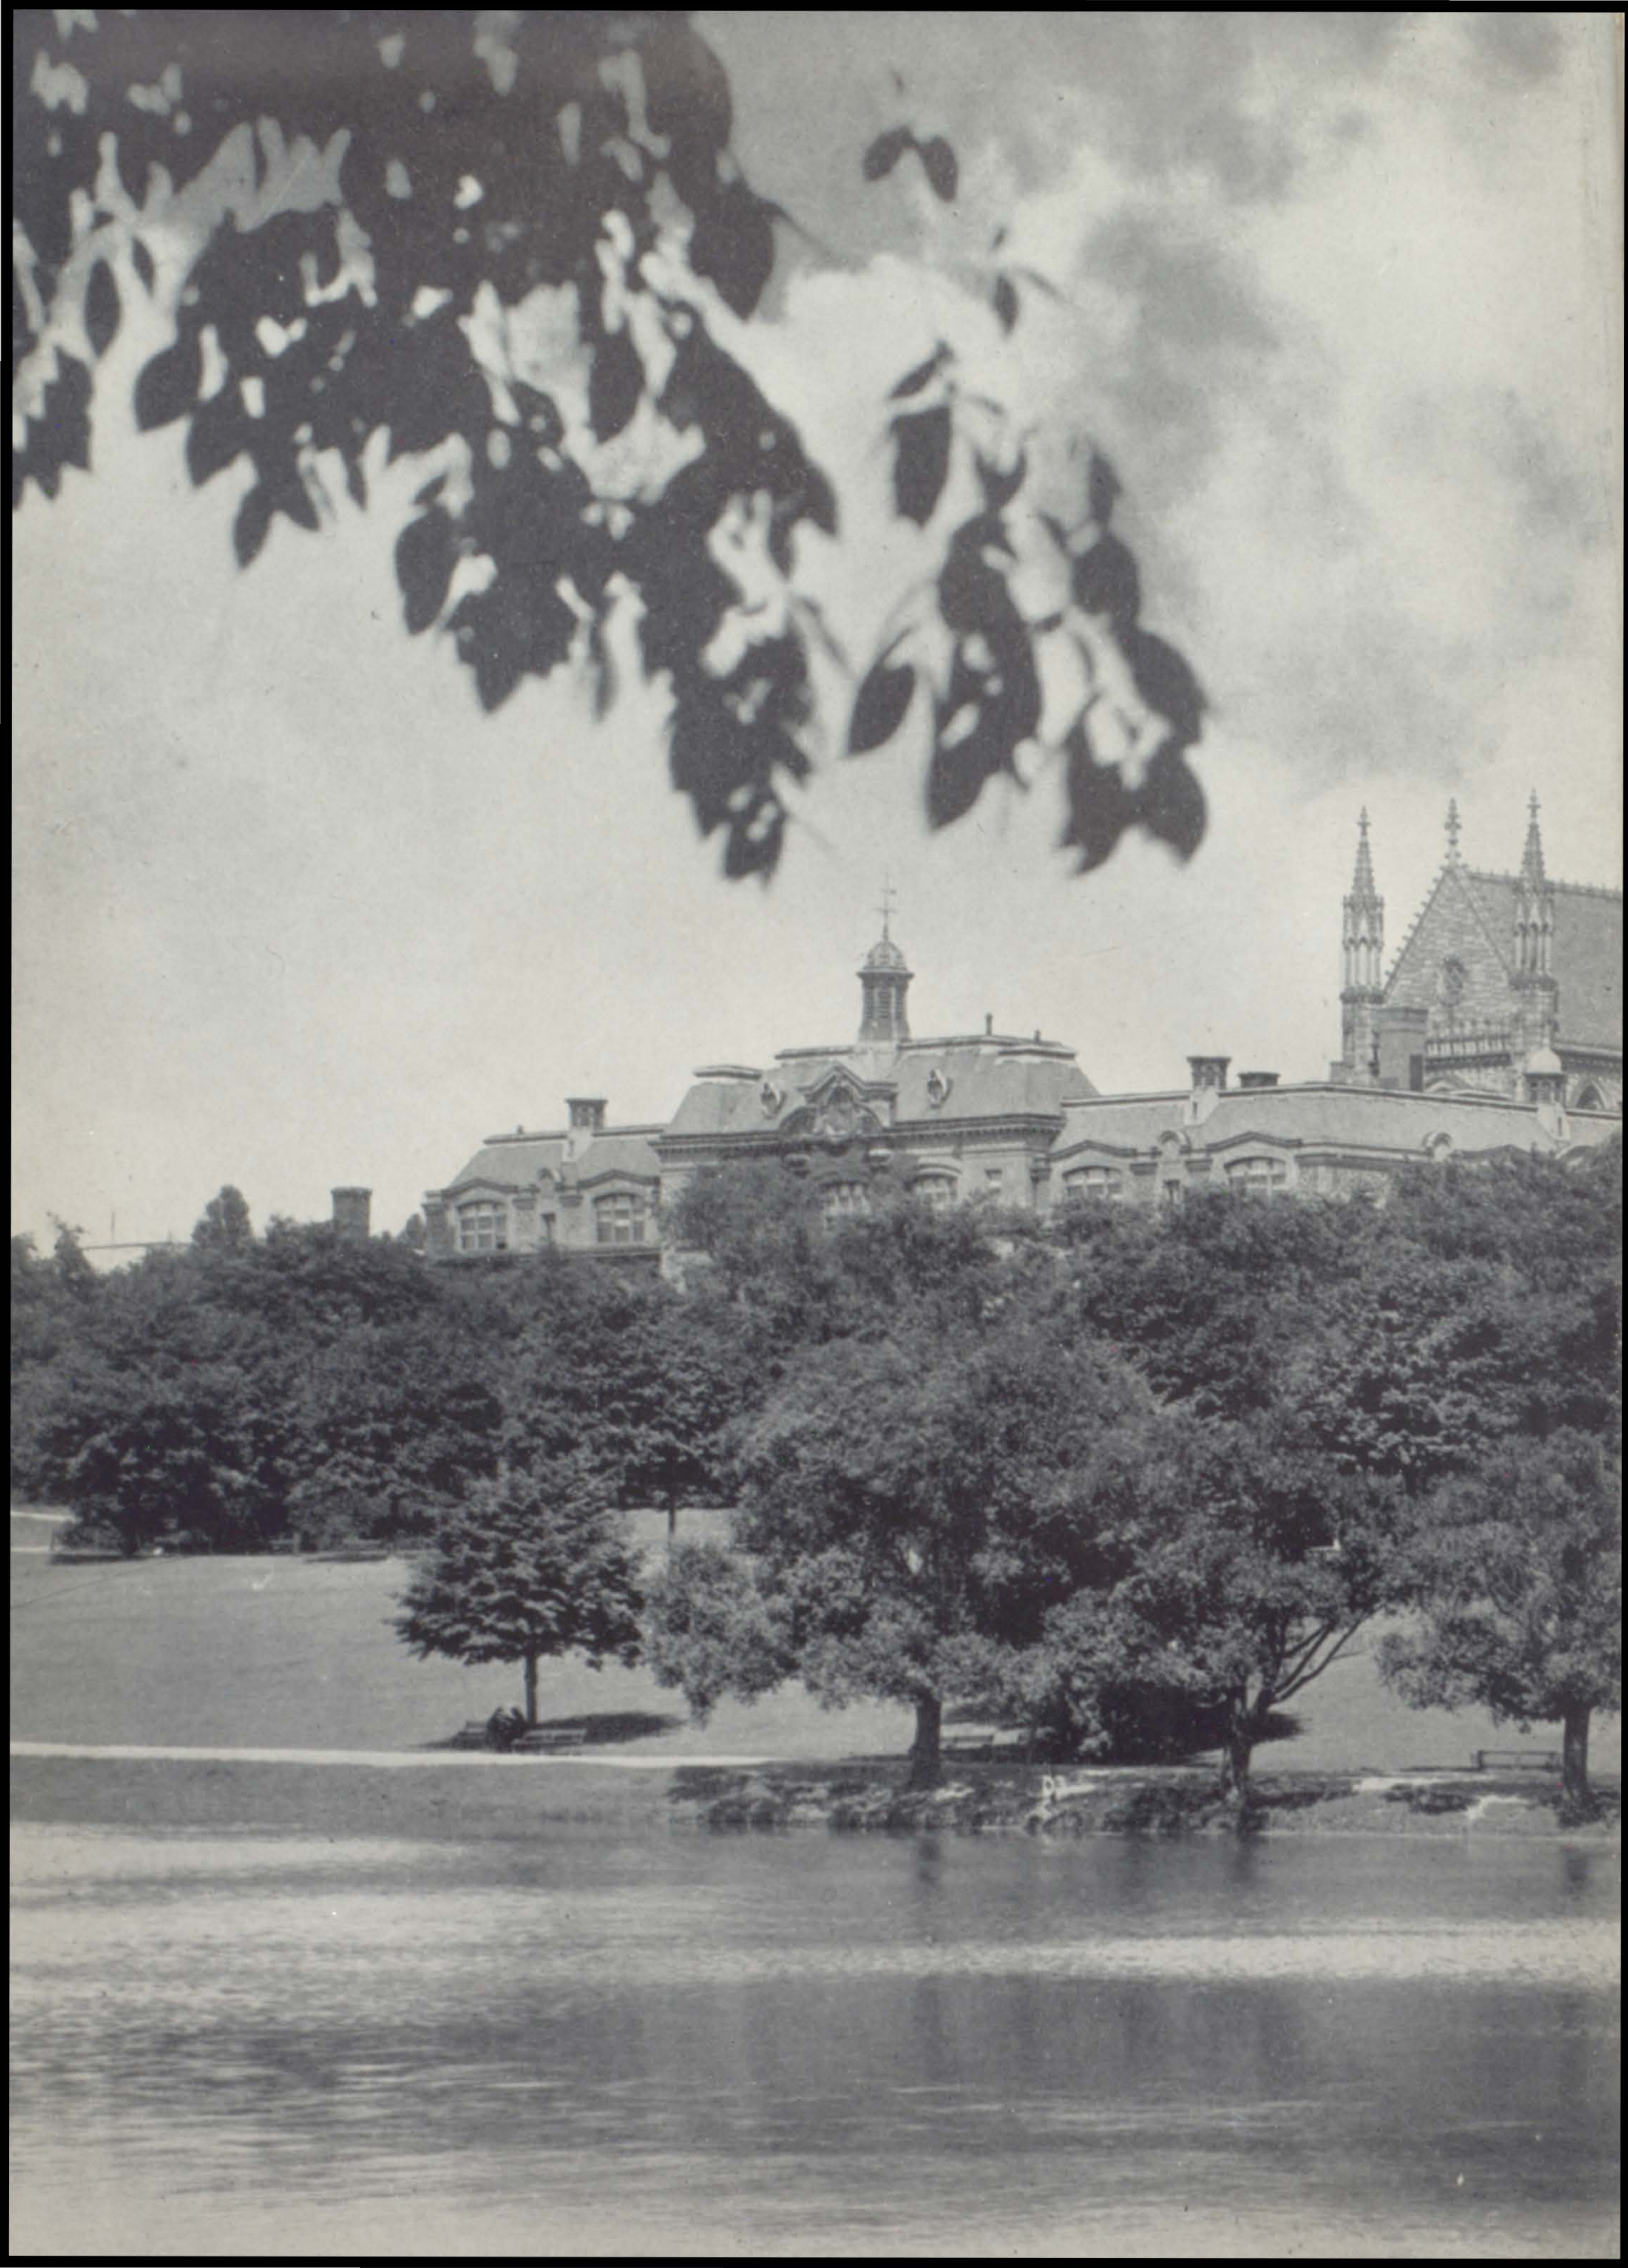

THE CLASS OF JUNE 1937
PRESENTS THE
“ATHENAEUM”

BARRINGER HIGH SCHOOL
NEWARK, N. J.

Alma Mater

Over many a city old,
    Famed in song and story.
Temple grey and castle hold
    Catch the sunset glory.
So our Alma Mater proud
    Looks o'er vale and meadow,
High between the sailing cloud
    And its drifting shadow.

For her colors, first the blue
    Of the April valley;
Then December's wintry hue
    When the storm winds rally.
Newark High, thy fame we raise,
    Many voices blending;
Through the years we pledge thee praise,
    Loyal to life's ending.

Mr. Raymond B. Gurley

Whose expert guidance has shown us the visionary path ahead.

Miss Elsa Disbrow

Whose charm and grace has spurred us on in our troubled hours.

DEDIC

Mr. Raymond R. Ammarell

whose kindly generous counsel has kept us on the road to success.

ATION

Miss Helen B. Junstead

whose sweet personality and deep understanding has helped us, always.

Mr. Joseph Celiano

Miss Louise Capen

Mr. Sidney Seidler

Foreword

During the past few years at least, the policy of various senior classes, when publishing a year-book, has usually leaned toward the theme idea. This might be defined in rather general terms as the emphasis throughout the publication of a definite subject, such as radio or aviation or even newspapers. This year however, the staff of the Athenaeum has decided to abandon any suggestion of a definite theme. Motivating this decision is the proximity of the centennial observation. The graduation of our class marks the completion of the first ninety-nine years since the founding of the old Newark High School which subsequently became the Barringer of today. And thus, naturally, we believe that as we stand on the threshold of the first century of Barringer's existence, nothing could be more appropriate and of greater significance than the emphasis of Barringer alone and the four eventful years we have spent here.

Class Song

words by
Marjorie Bosler

music by
Jennie Lombardi

'Tis an old story — graduation
For these dear familiar walls,
Barringer has known so many
Seniors passing through its halls!

We have sought the key of knowledge
Sought "for truth, honor, and light",
Now we seek the door that opens —
Brings the future to our sight.

In the dim mysterious crystal
Holding all that life has planned,
Shall we see our Alma Mater?
Shall we reach our promised land?

THE WITCHING HOUR

Robbers
Steal, at midnight.
Lovers kiss, at midnight.
A child is born, a man is dead.
Midnight . . . . .

THE CAT

Prowler
On the midnight
Road of deep mystery.
Green-eyed wanderer, silently
Searching.

SKY TRAFFIC

The moon
Is a yellow
Traffic light, to warn stars
To stop—while I make a wish with My love.

GOD'S GIFTS

Dreams are God's own gifts at night,
Sweet thoughts that come with pale moonlight,
Bearing new happiness, new sight.
O bring me dreams God, calm and mild—
Happy as a young child.

FICKLENESS

I was so sure I loved you best
Of all the ones I knew
I like the way your eyes could talk.
There was a difference in your walk.
But when we parted suddenly
My heart did not break in two—
So now I wonder just how many
There will be after you.

THE SEA

The swaying rhythm of the sea,
Recalls an age-old song to mind,
Whose beauty lingereth with me.
The swaying rhythm of the sea
Revives the haunting melody,
To float upon the roving wind.
The swaying rhythm of the sea
Recalls an age-old song to mind.

SURRENDER

A moonlit night,
A handsome swain,
May sway the coldest heart to love,
So who am I to think I might
The light of love disdain?

HOMAGE

Oh airplane, flying toward the setting sun,
What is it that gives you an air of mystery—
Of finality?
What is your story?
The clouds part for you,
As for a king,
Marching majestically through the ranks
Of his soldiers.
The sun stolidly awaits your coming—
With silence.
You are black against the burnt orange
Of the sun,
There is silence.
There is nothing to be seen,
Only—
An airplane flying toward the setting sun.

THE DREAMER

Be gone! Stark, staring realism
I hate your grey and dreary dress
Leave me with my dreams,
Wrapped in their shining folds
I am safe—alone—at peace.
The gentle dreams are rosy-hued and soft.
They rest like gossamer
Upon the rocky cliffs of life;
They float—noiselessly
Above the jagged rocks—the cruel rocks.
They are gone—unredeemable,
And leave behind them
Only life—bitter and sad—
Oh—give back my dreams!

RETROSPECT

I stood upon a mountain top
And looked down at the world,
I saw the tiny lakes and hills
The cottages tucked in coverlets of green;
Tall trees looked like dwarfed scrubs
Highways like strips of tin.
I wonder how we look to God
When we're so far below.

BELOVED

She sat before the tiny mirror
And combed her faded hair
With a toothless comb,
But the child on her lap
Saw only beauty
In the ravaged face.
Why do the eyes of love
See more than we?

EMOTIONS IN COLOR

Hate—

Black and Purple
Deep and Seething
High waves dashing
Roaring — Breaking.

Love—

Red and Gold
Quick and Searing
Swords clashing
Smothering — Startling.

Rage—

Red and Blue,
Loud and Blasting,
Lightning striking,
Crashing — Killing.

VARIOUS BLUES

There is

The blue of a rushing brook, dancing down a mountain-side in a sparkling cascade, cut-glass ripples showing sharp rocks beneath, cold, swift, tempting . . . . .

There is

The blue of the warm sky of summer, reaching upward, deep and calm, with white clouds floating, stretching like a canopy across the day . . . . .

There is

The blue of grass, fields upon fields of it over the contours of the earth, covering them with a soft-napped blanket, thick, luxurious . . . . .

There is

The blue of snapping flames, crackling and roaring, rising in a hot halo above burning logs, giving light and heat . . . . .

There is

The blue of dim-seen mountain-tops, far away in the dusky distance, their ragged tops scarcely visible, and melting into the sky until they cannot be discerned . . . . .

There is

The blue of the sea, whose dark waves surge rhythmically, undulating and rolling, swelling in from the ocean . . . . .

There is

The blue of laughing eyes, limpid, tempting and mocking, yet holding a tender promise of sweetness some day . . . . .

CINQUAINS

The rain
Has departed,
And the sinking red sun
Blushes at the hidden thoughts it
Has read.

The king
And his long train
Have left in golden gilt.
Behind him the dust of the road
Settles.

At The President's Birthday Ball

June, 1957

The outstanding social event of this year has taken place at the White House, Washington, D. C. President Joseph Pascal and Ruth Hart, the First Lady, have invited as special guests to the President's Birthday Ball their fellow graduates of Barringer High School in 1937.

It is amazing how far some of these students have gone in their respective fields of endeavor. The front pages of the nation's newspapers daily bear witness to their deeds and achievements.

On the list of government officials we find the name of William Scollin, vice-president under Pascal. Scollin, a former civil engineer, is ideally suited for this position.

Speaker of the House "Czar" Albert Demosthenes Rosenblutt was also present. The Speaker recently tied up legislation when he established a new filibustering record: 89 hours, 58 minutes, and 27.5 seconds. Representatives Carr, Polifroni, and Seidler, of New Jersey, have already set the machinery of impeachment in motion. "They shall not be recognized," says the Czar.

Senators Nicholas Romano and Harry Esposito are at present engaged in introducing a new child labor bill. They intend to reduce the school day to three hours, two of which shall be study periods. Charlotte Kluth, Secretary of the State, and William Zielin, Secretary of the Treasury, are the chief opponents of this proposal.

The Honorable Al Magno, youngest member of the Supreme Court is being considered by President Pascal for the Chief Justice's bench. "It's more comfortable," stated his honor at a press conference.

Prominent in national affairs is William Randolph Harbaugh, Republican owner of 60% of the nation's newspapers. It was mainly through Harbaugh's editorial campaigning that the Republicans came out on top in the last election. "Fighting Bob" La Frye, representative, is known for his brilliant attacks against Harbaugh's political machine "Arise, workers of America!" La Frye once exclaimed, "We shall not be burned at the altar of Mammon by Harbaugh's yellow journals!" Yet it is hard to overthrow this organization, since it is supported by such influential figures as Allen Pierpont Minion, John Hemingway Hamblin and John D. Grover, the National Chairman of the Daughters of American Revolution.

High in artistic circles is Marjorie Bosler, noted poet. Her latest poem is "The King's Trenchmen"

Madame Talkowsky of the Metropolitan Opera Company is to play the role of Delilah in "Samson and Delilah", soon to be presented. Daniel Singer, barytone, has been dieting exclusively on grape-nuts for the past three months and will play the part of Samson. Mr. Gagga-Petruzzelli, world-famous conductor, will lead the 200 piece symphony orchestra. Charles Shustak, once a member of Barringer's stage crew, is the present stage-manager at the Metropolitan.

The charming Jetta Wallis Scalera, of stage and screen, is co-starred with Emil Mascia in the Broadway comedy hit, "I Love Life—So What?" Mr. Mascia, as the mustachioed moocher of Manhattan's sidewalks, is superbly supported by Gilda Miani, Beanis Esposito, Sam Melillo, and Russell Taylor.

Mary Pitts has a song and dance act at the Waldorf—Astoria, but she will soon leave for Hollywood.

Mademoiselle Beatrice La Blanc is starring in the French film "La Belle Dame Sans Merci".

Louis Carlucci and his "Swingsters" have just signed a long term contract with Del Vecchio's Night Owl Club. Andy Del Vecchio, popular caterer, will also present Rita Ferri and her novel "Keyhole" dance, and Frances Cuiet, torch singer.

On the airwaves are:

Muriel Herrmann "The Proper Way to Manage Your Husband".

Edith Sigsworth "How to Maintain a Pleasant Disposition"

Florence Richards "How to Make Yourself Charming".

John Laragy "Speeches on Silence".

Helen Klein "Bringing up the Baby".

Stella Kielb "How to Cook for Your Hubby".

David Herron "Lessons on the Enjoyment of Leisure".

Marie Belfiore "Latest Fashions in Woman's Dress".

The best selling novel, "A Barringer Tragedy", written by Philip Gerson (An egotist), has been made into a play. It is now being directed by Anita Weitzner and will appear on Broadway in a few weeks. Three great stars of the stage will appear in the production. They are Dorothy Maltese, Michelen De Fabrizio and Vincent Marotta. The story is about a stirring High School romance. It tells how a tragic triangle began one day in a geometry class. There is great suspense throughout the play and it has a suitable climax.

In the worlds of science, the well known Dr. Heinz Pfeiffer, with the aid of his worthy assistant, Dr. David Laddey, has invented a new type of automobile which will run on hay and oats. Colonel Robert E. Scott of Kentucky, horse-fancier, thinks it's a fine idea.

Professor Josephus Bernstein of the Carnegie Institute for the advancement of Arts and Sciences is ready to publish his theory on the fourth dimension. The Professor's views, comprising seventeen volumes, are based on the startling fact that  $x = \frac{1}{c} ab - c^2m - H_2SO_4$ . William Glover, philanthropist and humanitarian, is rushing the completion of the new psychopathic hospital.

The manufacturing firm of Grasso, Corbo, and Gizzi, Inc., is now producing a novel combination cigar lighter and diaper pin, the invention of John Marconi Alercio.

The Class of '37 has contributed its share of athletes to a sports-minded nation. Diaz Cetrulo, Olympic fencing champion, is coaching Princeton's fencing team and teaching dramatics on the side.

James McGilvray, twice champion in the Olympic 880 meter run, has had a great honor bestowed upon him. For breaking the record of that distance, he was awarded the Mary Brett trophy.

Jack Dargin, former All-American tackle, is the football mentor at Rutgers.

Philip Caruso holds down the number one hurling position on the New York Giants, while William Reich covers left-field on the Yankees. John Schmidt is running for the New York A. C. and Vito Trovisano is playing professional football with the Orange Tornadoes.

Among those professionally inclined is found the name of Alfred Silber, D.D.S. Dr. Silber, an exponent of painless dentistry, has discovered a new dental anaesthetic. Two sailors one day happened into his office. They were Tom Caruso and Tony De Rosa. De Rosa had a bad tooth and wanted it pulled. Dr. Silber applied his new anaesthetic, and, while Tom held Tony's head, extracted the delinquent bicuspid. When asked a few days later how the anaesthetic had worked, Tony said: "How does it work? Say, Tom's fallen from a three story house, been run over seven times, and kicked in the head by a horse and hasn't felt a thing. Yeah. Tom was affected by holding my head."

Doctor Joan Matheke, of the Matheke Medical Towers, is seeking a specific remedy for the disease known as "adolscent blues". The discovery of this remedy, Dr. Matheke states, will bring a Utopian Age to adolescents, parents and teachers.

One cannot speak of the professions without referring to the firm of Hopp, Hopp and Scopp, attorneys-at-law. They have been conspicuous in some well known cases. Chief among these was the divorce case of Caroline Saracco vs. Joe Freda. Mr. Freda, Olympic champion in the mile run in 1944 and a very becoming fellow, became, to his surprise, a favorite with the ladies, young ladies. Mrs. Caroline Freda could not keep up with Joe's fast pace, so she decided to bring matters to a climax. With the aid of Don Malanga and Rosalind Del Tufo, two handsome co-respondents, a charge of mutual infidelity was brought before Judge Barrett. This dignitary was somewhat confused as to the proper procedure in the case, so he appealed to Hopp, Hopp and Scopp. After thirty days of heated argument, they finally reached a decision. But meanwhile Joe and Caroline made up and lived happily ever after.

The former Barringer students mentioned above were all present at the Birthday Ball given in honor of President Joseph Pascal.

Philip Gerson.

Muriel Conover.

BARRINGER 1933-1937

By Marjorie Bosler.

We know that "dear old Chris" sailed on the blue
In fourteen hundred and ninety-two.
But did you hear the great discovery
Of nineteen hundred and thirty-three?
A quiet, fearful group of students came
To Barringer to learn (?) and earn their fame—
Oh, yes, we freshmen came—we saw—and then
We stopped and looked around again.
The upper classmen scorned us vigorously
And said, "How small these 'freshies' get to be!"
They made us buy a book—yes, you should see 'em.
I think they called the book "The Athenaeum."

II.

We're sophomores now, our first year here's gone by
So dignified and studious we try
To show "those freshmen" just the things to say,
We even do our homework every day!

III.

Our junior year has come, and in term "A"
With Mr. Ammarell to lead the way
We organize our class that "can't be beat."
We chose Joe Pascal president, and sweet
Ruth Hart vice-president; we make great plans
For our first grand affair, the 3A Dance!

IV.

As great and mighty seniors we've returned
To make our fame (and fortune, too, we earned);
On caps, blue caps with brims and buttons white
A fad was made for every Barringerite!
Next our reception to the Senior A's
Was a success, and talked about for days.
A fateful February day then came
To make us Senior A's in fact and name—
You know the rest, a Dance to welcome Spring
With Lou Carlucci's music—full of swing—
And last, this year book, they all came, just see 'em:
All come to buy the one and only Athenaeum!

The June class 'thirty-seven will bear
Gay memories into each coming year.

CLASS WILL

We, of the Class of June, 1937, Barringer High School in the City of Newark and State of New Jersey, being of sound and disposing mind and memory, do hereby make, publish and declare this to be our Last Will and Testament, and hereby revoke all wills and codicils by us at any time heretofore made.

First: We direct that all our just debts, funeral and testamentary expenses be paid by the executor hereinafter named, as soon as conveniently may be after our decease.

Second: We devise and bequeath to those poor unfortunates left behind, all our worldly goods—

To the boys' cooking class, a dozen of A. Rosenblutt's stale puns.
To too small seats, the startling news of Bob's graduation. Great Scott!

To anemic looking freshmen, Bill Harbaugh's blush.

To some poor wall-flower, John Grover's dancing ability should be a help.

To a weary, worrying freshman we leave Kay McKelvy's happy-go-lucky nature

To the future historians, our ideas on how this country should be run and why.

To some worthy freshman, Michelen De Fabrizio's sweetness.

To some silent, inconspicuous junior, Marjorie Bosler's gift of gab.

To the Art Department, Joe Bernstein's colored shirts.

To the Li-Berry, Orville's taciturnity.

To the embittered "F" students, Edith "Sweets" Sigsworth leaves a pound of sugar she doesn't need.

To Colyer's Printing Co. we leave the happy news that L. Siedler and W. Zielin, their competitors, will do no more printing after this term.

To Aurora, Goddess of Dawn, we leave Inez Boyd's golden hair.

To Mr. Salerno, our track coach, we leave the breath-taking news of Jim McGilvray's graduation.

To the Girls' Gym Class, we bequeath C. Kluth's comb and compact.

To the ever-present juniors we leave R. Frye's polished manners and V. Marotta's seriousness. (A hint to you juniors.)

To the fluttering feminine heart we leave the vivid memory of D. Malanga's smoothness. We also leave Joe Pascal's seriousness to the juniors.

To the mute suffering desks the joyful news that Bossert will do no more engraving.

To the sophomores we bequeath Esther Jerrell's axiom, "Silence is golden, if practised."

To the faculty we leave the bright hope of Room 59, that some freshman class will come in to haunt them.

To Bob Ripley's collection of oddities we leave Heinz Pfeiffer's mathematical mind.

Third: We hereby nominate and appoint the present 4B class to be executor of this, our will and we direct that it be permitted to qualify as such without the giving of a bond or any other security, in any jurisdiction. In witness whereof, we have hereunto subscribed our name and affixed our seal this seventeenth day of March in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and thirty-seven.

(Signed) CLASS OF JUNE 1937.

Witness:

DANIEL SINGER,
HARRIETTE HARDY.

Questions	Mr. Ammarell	Miss Tunstead
What is your nickname?	Ammy	You try and make one out of "Helen!"
What is your weakness?	A weak hobby, playing golf	Making decorations for the senior class
What is your favorite expression?	"Now if you people keep quiet, I should like to make an announcement"	Well, I couldn't talk at all if my hands were tied.
What is your favorite radio program?	Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians	Bing Crosby
Who is your favorite movie star?	I go to the movies about once a year. Last saw "Maid of Salem".	I've got too many favorites.
What are you doing next Saturday nite?	Playing cards . . Want to come?	Playing bridge
Why can this Senior Class never be equalled?	Exceptionally fine pupils in this class	Now, why do you think?
Define a Senior	A senior is one who should have culture	They defy definition

In glancing over the above list we see several ripe openings for comments. In fact, one might add, irresistible. The first question to be proposed is this: what is Mr. Seidler hiding from us? Come, come, Mr. Seidler, don't be bashful. Surely it can't be as bad as some of ours.

And Miss Capen, please speak a mite louder. You see, we cawn't heah you. Pip-pip. Also, Miss Capen, do you use "pinch" as a noun or a verb?

We gracefully acknowledge Miss Capen's back-handed deprecation, and will try to prove it false.

We are glad and gratified to know that Mr. Seidler agrees with us.

As we are now seniors (or rather, SENIORS) we refuse to stoop beneath our dignity to answer those definitions. The least we can say is this; "And after we treated them so nicely for four years! Well, that's gratitude, I guess."

Miss Capen	Mr. Seidler	Mr. Celiano
Doc; Independent(!)	I won't talk	Haven't any . . Oh well, then, Joe
Clark Gable	Apple pie	Eating and sleeping
"Stuff and Nonsense"	"Yes, it isn't"	"Now let's use common sense"
Rudy Vallee	Ford Hour	Boake Carter and the March of Time
Clark Gable, but Robert Taylor will do in a pinch	Mickey Mouse	Helen Hayes, Greta Garbo, Lionel Barrymore
Going to see Richard II	Partaking in a bridge game.	The usual thing
Because they have no more worlds to conquer	Yes	Because of its fine personalities
A Senior is one who knows he knows not	One who is classified as a fourth year student.	A senior is one who tries to get as much out of a teacher as possible, with a minimum of effort

Miss Tunstead, we assure you we haven't even tried. And we appreciate the decorations.

We think that Mr. Celiano takes a lot for granted. "Common sense". tsk-tsk. By the way, is common sense so called because it is so uncommon? Just one of those paradoxes.

Would it be too much to ask Mr. Ammarell how he enjoyed "Maid of Salem", or perhaps it's this year's picture.

Personally, we think Greta Garbo got slipped in by mistake.

What is the usual thing? We are willing to bet he said that just to keep

COMMENCEMENT

Anita Weitzner

"Toni! Toni Lane! Wait for me, can't you?"

Toni turned slowly and reluctantly. She had wanted to be left alone, but she supposed she must wait for Rita, now. Maybe it was just a high school "crush," she thought, but she was positively mad about Tom Blake—and no one knew about it either. She was somewhat consoled by that thought. At least, with things as they were, she would not have to feel so humiliated about what had happened before. It was simply this: as she was tripping gaily down the fifty steps from the main entrance of Prancerville High School, Toni's spirits were soaring, for her English teacher had just informed her, confidentially of course, that she was to receive the English prize at commencement. As she reached the foot of the stairs, she saw Tom gazing fondly down on Rosalie Brooks, who was talking excitedly, with many funny little gestures. This dampened Toni's spirits a bit, but seeing her crowd watching her, she called casually, "Hello, Rosalie; hello, Tom," being careful to greet Rosalie first.

Then one of the tragedies of Toni's life happened. As she joined her friends, Tom glanced slowly in her direction. Then, with not even so much as a nod, he turned back to Rosalie and said, "Yes, Rosie, go on."

Toni prided herself on having carried off the situation rather well. She had turned abruptly to the girls and told them her good news. In the midst of their congratulations she turned hurriedly toward home and said, "Well, girls, I really must hurry. So long!"

She angrily brushed the tears from her lovely black eyes as she turned to meet Rita Nolan, her best friend. He had called that little blonde hussy "Rosie," too, she thought, as Rita rushed up to her breathlessly and said sarcastically, "Well, Miss Lane, you might have waited for me, you know. I still live next door to you, or have you forgotten?"

"Oh, Rita," she apologised, "I'm really awfully sorry, but I was so excited about what Mr. Simmons told me, that I forget everything else. Gosh, but it feels nice to be a senior!"

"Huh, you ought to feel good. And say, before I forget, I've got even better news for you, or at least I think so."

"What is it? Quick, tell me!" commanded Toni excitedly forgetting Tom for the moment.

"Just this," stated Rita. "You, Toni Lane, are to be the envy of all Prancerville."

"What! How? Why? Where? When?" exclaimed Toni.

"Well," said Rita, "you are to have the great thrill of walking down the aisle commencement day with—Tom Blake."

Toni almost dropped her books, but she managed to ask casually, "So what?"

"So what! Well of all the—! Say, maybe you don't realize it, but there isn't a girl in Prancerville who isn't thrilled to death if Tom just looks at her. Everyone has a crush on him."

"Well, I haven't," said Toni, keeping her fingers firmly crossed, for she had promised her mother never to tell a lie.

"Gee, you must be invulnerable—or something," snapped Rita. "Ever since Tom came to this hick town from New York, he's made a hit with everybody, and the funny part of it is that it hasn't gone to his head. Gee," she turned on Toni suddenly, "I wish I were tall. If you weren't tall you wouldn't be walking down the aisle with Tom Blake."

"What has my being tall got to do with that?" asked Toni. "Even though Tom is the tallest boy in the class and I'm the tallest girl, Tom is the president, and they always give the president his choice of which girl he's to march in with."

"Well," answered Rita, "I was there when Mr. Daniels asked Tom if he would mind walking with you, because he's so tall that he would tower way above the other boys if he walked with a short girl, meaning of course, Rosalie Brooks. Everybody thought he would make a big fuss, because he's supposed to like short girls. They even quoted him in the 'Prancerite' as saying that he 'likes 'em small and blonde.' Oh, Toni, I'm so thrilled for you! All Prancer-ville will be at Commencement."

"What did Tom say, then?" asked Toni, feeling that she must know even if it hurt.

"Oh, he just said, 'Well, that's all right, too,' and walked out."

"Yes, to meet Rosalie," said Toni angrily.

"Say, do my ears deceive me, or are you jealous? I thought you said—"

"Well, this is my stop," interrupted Toni, hurriedly. "I live here, you know. So long! See you tomorrow."

The next day rehearsals for commencement began. Toni experienced one of the thrills of her life as she marked down the aisle with the tall, much-sought-after Thomas Blake. When, after half an hour of practising, they were given a few minutes off, Tom turned to Toni and said, "Well, Toni, how do you think you're going to like Commencement?"

"Oh, grand," answered Toni as casually as she could. "I'm certainly glad I'm to march in with someone taller than myself. I was always tortured by the thought that I would be forced on one of the shorter boys."

"You're not so tall," said Tom, as he measured her against himself. She reached a little past his nose. "Besides with a face as pretty as yours it wouldn't matter if you were seven feet tall. I—"

Much to Toni's disappointment, rehearsal was resumed at that moment.

That night, with her old stand-by, Bob Martin, Toni went into Perry's, the town's largest ice cream parlor. On commencement night it was closed to everyone except the graduates. Each boy took his favorite girl. Toni supposed she would have to go with Bob, although she knew whom she would like to go with. Oh, well! As they were making their way to an empty table, a couple at the side attracted her attention. She looked a little closer. It was Rosalie Brooks and Tom Blake. Toni's evening was spoiled.

The day before commencement, Mr. Daniels, the class advisor, was in an irritable mood. Over and over again the class went through the program without being able to satisfy him. Even the organist got her share of the rebukes. Finally, with an air of not being able to hold out any longer, Tom turned to Toni and whispered, "Say, Toni, have you promised anyone yet for Perry's tomorrow n—"

He was interrupted by complete silence. Toni was frightened lest everyone hear her heart pounding. Then followed the sound of Mr. Daniels' heels clicking on the hardwood floor. He marched up to Tom, glared up at him, and said with a sneer, "Well, Blake, I always thought the president of the class was supposed to be one by whom the rest of the class could set an example! You seem to have disproven that." Then with a stern glance around he shouted, "Continue with the rehearsal!"

When it was finally over, Tom turned again to Toni and said, "Whew, I sure did let myself in for it that time. Anyhow—will you come?"

"Come where?" asked Toni demurely, trying not to sound too anxious.

"Will you come with me to Perry's tomorrow night?" he repeated.

"Oh, Toni and Tom!" called a voice behind them.

She turned. Toni and Tom. How nice that sounded. How nice everything sounded! It was a beautiful day.

"B" Men

VITO TRAVISANO

Vito's athletic career commenced in his freshman year, when he played on the freshmen team. During his sophomore and junior years, Vito played second team ball, but in 1956 he was one of the varsity linemen and thus received his letter. Vito is also an outfielder on the baseball squad, and received a "B-2" for his efforts.

DIAZ CETRULO

The graduation of "Di" brings to a close the reign of the famed Cetrulo brothers in fencing. "Di" has followed the footsteps of his older brothers with much greater competence than was ever hoped for. He has won so many matches that it is impossible to record them here. A brief summary, however, reveals that he has earned three major letters for fencing, and one for football, while finishing exceedingly high in the state and national individual championships. "Di" captained the fencing team in '57 when he won the New Jersey Junior Championship. He is also the state inter-scholastic champion.

ANTHONY D'AMBROSIO

Although devoting himself to baseball only, "Babe" has earned no less than three major "B's". In the 1954 and '56 seasons, "Babe" was varsity shortstop. After batting .370 in '56 he was unanimously elected captain. This season he has alternated between shortstop and the pitcher's box, with much success.

JACK DARGIN

Considering that he did not go out for athletics until 1955, Jack's success is rather remarkable. In that year he went out for both track and football. As a shotputter Jack placed third in the city meet, and then turned to football where he earned a B-2 in '55. Last season Jack was regular tackle, rising to great heights in the East Orange game, in which he scored the only touchdown. He closed his athletic career as a member of the track team this spring.

ROBERT SCOTT

Bob's meteoric career as a swimmer was cut short by the disbanding of the swimming team in 1956 because of the lack of facilities. Fortunately for Bob, however, his ability was recognized before '56 and he received a major "B" as a junior. He also earned a minor "B" during his sophomore year.

VINCENT CORONA

It was back in the 1954-55 season that Vincent made his debut as a fencer. He showed unusual promise and consequently was a member of the "varsity" the following season. After receiving his letter as a junior he was forced to withdraw from the team during the past season because of other activities. Vincent leaves Barringer with a minor and major letter in addition to several medals.

ALFONSE SIERCHIO

Al started twirling for the Barringer baseball team in 1956. He proved a great asset to the varsity team that year and was awarded a major "B" for his efforts. The baseball team again claimed him in '57 when he was one of the leading pitchers.

JOSEPH FREDA

Joe went out for swimming and football in 1954, but he soon decided that running was his best branch of athletics; he became a member of the cross-country team that same year. He continued running for the cross-country team in '55 and '56 and was a member of the city championship team in 1956. Besides being a varsity cross-country man he was also a "first string" man on the track teams for three years. He participated in the half-mile and pole vault during his career as a track star. Joe has gathered for himself three major letters and a wreath "B" during his stay in Barringer.

SALVATORE BRIANTE

Sal launched upon his athletic career in 1954 when he "made" the varsity football team while playing center. He only participated in one game in '55 when he had to leave school. Sal returned the following year and held down the center field position on the varsity baseball team. When the football season rolled around in '56, his presence was felt as left end on the gridiron aggregation. Sal has three major letters to show for his efforts.

WILLIAM HARBAUGH

Bill is one of those rare fellows who find time to mix athletics with other activities and who make a success of both. Bill first went out for baseball in '55 and was third string catcher that year. The following season his catching adeptness won him the regular assignment and he played every game but three which he missed because of an injury. This season he was one of our best players.

JOHN SCHMIDT

John is another one of our versatile athletes. Although specializing in cross-country, he has also been a member of the track, swimming and football squads. John climaxed his checkered career by being third man on last fall's cross-country team, thus earning a major letter.

JAMES MCGILVRAY

Jim's graduation leaves a tremendous gap in the track and cross-country teams. All told, he has won three major letters and the coveted wreath "B" over a two-year period. In 1956 he won the city half-mile, but even this astounding feat was obliterated last winter when he finished third in the "Nationals" held at Madison Square Garden. He also finished third in the state meet which enabled him to lead the indoor track team in scoring points.

WILLIAM REICH

It took Bill quite a while to decide what sport was his favorite, but once his mind was made up there was no stopping him. Bill has received "B-2's" from baseball, cross-country and football. However, in 1956 he decided to specialize in baseball and as a result played left-field on the varsity. Bill earned his "B" in both '56 and '57.

FINE QUALITY PRINTING is nowhere so essential as in school and college annuals. The story told by copy is worthless unless the printed pages provide eloquent testimony of its truthful reproduction of campus life.

- Production of distinctive printing depends upon the masterful handling of such technicalities as layout, artwork, make-ready, and presswork, and also upon the selection of proper ink, paper and binding.
- Consistently good printing has made the Colyer organization the first and last choice of the leading schools and colleges.
